Communication and language	These skills are embedded thoroughly: listening closely to the teacher, talking with and listening to a partner at every point in the lesson.
Listening and attention – ‘Children listen attentively in a range of situations. They listen to stories, anticipating key events and respond to what they hear with relevant comments, questions or actions. They give their attention to what others say and respond appropriately, while engaged in another activity.’	In the Get Writing Handbook , there is detailed advice on how to plan, organise and run storytimes, ensuring that children develop an awareness of vocabulary and phrasing as well as engaging with the content of stories in terms of characters, settings and events. Storytime sessions (explained in the Get Writing Handbook and on ruthmiskintraining.com) give children access to fiction, non-fiction and poetry at a level beyond that at which they can read independently.
Understanding – ‘Children follow instructions involving several ideas or actions. They answer ‘how’ and ‘why’ questions about their experiences and in response to stories or events.’	In the Get Writing Handbook , questions are suggested to encourage children to talk about stories that they have heard or read, and to expand their vocabulary along with their ideas.
Speaking – ‘Children express themselves effectively, showing awareness of listeners’ needs. They use past, present and future forms accurately when talking about	In the Get Writing Handbook , there are suggestions for how ‘Talk through the day’ can encourage children to use new vocabulary, comment on events that are happening, and have happened, thereby developing their own narratives.

Children start reading simple sentences in the Red Ditty books and then read fiction and non-fiction books carefully matched to their growing phonic knowledge from Green level onwards. They decode words using phonic knowledge but also learn Red words (common irregular words).
